 The third edition of the Little Red Book and the first printing containing all 33 chapters and the basis for all future reprints and all translations. The original 1964 version had only 30 chapters and comprises 250pp, and the second edition (March 1965) added two more chapters taking the text to 260pp. Thus, this third edition adds the thirty-third chapter for the first time and extends the text to 270pp.. The text error in the calligraphic endorsement by Lin Biao found in all copies of the 1964 first edition was corrected in all subsequent copies (though lacking entirely in the 2nd edition). Nearly all copies of this August 1965 third edition has the endorsement leaf corrected. Curiously, in this copy, the error still occurs. Only the 2014 Grolier Club catalogue (page 49) mentions the existence of this error but indicates it has been noted in only "a few copies" and almost always the endorsement is corrected.

 SCARCE Aramco-issued wall map of the Arabian Peninsula, "prepared by the U.S. Ministry of the Interior and the U.S. Geological Survey, under the auspices of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, the Ministry of Petroleum and Mineral Resources, and the US Department of State". Printed entirely in Arabic; the annotations read: "The locations included in the basis of this map are dependent upon the best information available to us at their composition in 1942. The exact location of many of these locations goes back to the what the analyses and journeys of foreigners showed and is therefore subject to modification. This map does not denote the borders in obscure regions". Other notes on the map indicate that the borders in the southeast, southwest, the Empty Quarter, and the northwest have not been delineated. Curiously, the map retains the designation "Al-khalij al-farsi" for the Arabian (Persian) Gulf, reflecting Arab-world naming conventions of the early 1950s.

We have been unable to trace another copy offered at auction.

Very rare: in spite of having been co-produced by the U.S. Government, today the only copies listed in research collections are those at Princeton, at the University of Manchester, and at the Beirut Library of Human Sciences. A greatly reduced new edition, measuring only 46 x 62 cms, was issued by Archive Editions in 1992.

North Atlantic Ocean.- Polar exploration.- Purdy (John, hydrographer) A NEW CHART OF THE NORTHERN OCEAN, DAVIS' STRAIT, AND BAFFIN'S BAY, AND BAFFIN'S BAY: INCLUDING THE NAVIGATION FROM GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, TO SPITSBERGEN AND THE WHITE SEA. DRAWN FROM THE MOST ACCURATE SURVEYS, WHICH INCLUDE THOSE OF CAPTAINS ROSS, PARRY, SCORESBY, LYON, CLAVERING &C., impressively large and detailed blueback chart with over 15 inset maps and views, charting exploratory routes from the British Isles to Baffin's Bay, with additional flap segment at the centre left edge, which shows the 'North Georgian Islands' alongside 'Extensive Barriers of Ice' in a

'Region not yet explored', engraving, on four sheets conjoined with additional flap section, total size 1010 x 1760 mm (39 3/4 x 69 1/4 in), presented on early blue paper support, which bears printed advertisement label of W. Reid & Son on reverse, minor surface dirt, handling creases, unframed, R.H. Laurie, 1847.

 Scarce. The British Library appears to hold a number of earlier states of the present map, dated 1820, which did not include the additional "flap" section showing the 'North Georgian Islands'. The present chart appears to relate to Purdy's publication 'Memoir descriptive and explanatory to accompany the charts of the northern Atlantic Ocean; and comprising instructions, general and particular for the navigation of that sea'; the University of Cambridge Libraries hold an edition published by R.H. Laurie, 1845. Several times throughout the chart itself, text descriptions suggest referencing the memoir for further information, and also that the chart is 'Accompanied by a Book of directions &c., Entitled 'Memoir, Descriptive, and Exploratory', by J. Purdy.

We have been unable to trace any examples of the present chart, or variant states, at auction over the last 20 years.
